BILL EMERSON HUMANITARIAN TRUST

The Bill Emerson Humanitarian Trust is a food reserve administered under the authority of the Secretary of Agriculture. This reserve is available to meet emergency humanitarian food needs in developing countries, allowing the United States to respond to unanticipated food crises with U.S. commodities. Up to 4 million metric tons of U.S. wheat, corn, sorghum, and rice can be kept in reserve. On Dec. 31, 2002, the reserve held about 2.0 million metric tons of wheat.

The reserve was originally authorized by the Agricultural Trade Act of 1980 as the Food Security Wheat Reserve. Subsequent legislation broadened the number of commodities that can be held in the reserve and, in 1998, it was renamed the Bill Emerson Humanitarian Trust. Most recently, the Farm Security and Rural Investment Act of 2002 reauthorized the Emerson Trust through 2007.

Guidelines for Release

The Secretary of Agriculture is authorized to release commodities from the reserve to meet unanticipated emergency needs that cannot otherwise be met under P.L. 480, the U.S. government's major humanitarian food aid program. Each fiscal year, the Secretary can release for this purpose up to 500,000 metric tons, plus up to another 500,000 metric tons that could have been released in prior years but was not released. The Secretary is also authorized to release eligible commodities for use under P.L. 480 if the domestic supply of that commodity is determined to be in limited supply and would not meet the availability criteria of P.L. 480.

All commodities in the reserve and all donations made using the reserve are U.S. commodities.

Guidelines for Replenishment and Reimbursement

The Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) may be reimbursed for the value of U.S. commodities released from the Emerson Trust from P.L. 480 appropriations. CCC may then use that reimbursement to replenish commodities released. Reimbursement to CCC for ocean freight and related noncommodity costs occurs through the regular USDA appropriations process.
